MANAGER'S COMMENTS

Review

For the month of November, the local sukuk/bonds market was quite subdued with bid-ask prices were quoted at a wide range. The quiet market was also on the back of political uncertainties vis-à-vis US mid-term election in the Global Markets. Global Equities weakened amid falling crude oil price. Both WTI and Brent crashed by 17% and 14.2% respectively. This led to an upward pressure on the local sukuk/bond yields while the MYR weakened to as low as 4.195.

Meanwhile, the focus in the local market was the reopening of 7-years GII auction, the first post-budget after the PH government announced a wider fiscal deficit. The auction garnered quite a strong bid-to-cover ratio of 2.814 times, despite its hefty issuance of RM5.5 billion comprising public auction of RM3 billion and RM2.5 billion for private placement. Post-auction was taken 3 basis points ("bps") lower from the average of 4.212%.

As widely expected, Bank Negara Malaysia ("BNM") maintain the Overnight Policy Rate ("OPR") steady at 3.25%, with the aim to support the economic growth while maintaining inflationary pressure.

As of end November 2018, the overall MGS yields held higher by 3 bps to 7 bps while the 15-years fell 4bps. The 3y- 5-, 7- and 10-years closed at 3.69%, 3.86%, 4.05% and 4.13% respectively while 15-years closed lower at 4.54%. Similarly, the GII yields also traded higher by 2 bps to 4 bps with the 3-, 5-, and 7-years closed at 3.76%, 3.94% and 4.16% respectively whilst, the 10- and 15-years traded 1 bps to 2 bps lower at 4.24% and 4.61% respectively.

Investment Outlook & Strategy

In the recent budget, the fiscal deficit is expected to narrow to 3.70% in 2018 and 3.4% in 2019, signaling the government's commitment towards further fiscal consolidation. Gross and net MGS/GII supply is projected to be RM120 billion and RM53 billion in 2019. Although the gross MGS/GII supply is relatively higher next year, but the net amount of RM53 billion is still manageable. This could add-in some positive vibes among investors in the near term. Given the healthy bid-to-cover ratio trends and Bank Negara maintains its accommodative stance, we expect demand to remain supportive coming from onshore real money especially on the front end of the curve.

As of October 2018, foreign holdings of MGS stood at 40.7% from 39.5% in September 2018 (+RM4.7 billion). The unexpected large inflows in October 2018 were probably due to improving risk sentiment towards Emerging Markets despite continued weakness in Ringgit. These positive inflows further indicate that foreign exposure in MGS has been mostly rolled over Going forward, investors are expected to stay vigilant, watching closely developments in the US on the ongoing global tariff conflicts between US-China and higher interest rate outlook. MGS/GII curve could potentially flatten further from current levels reinforcing views that market players may extend duration further as domestic growth moderates couple with dimmer prospects on OPR adjustments.

The Fund will continue investing in short term Islamic deposits.
