MANAGER'S COMMENTS

Review

Trading activities in the local government bonds/sukuk softened amid lingering domestic political uncertainties and lack of fresh catalyst. Market saw less volatility and lower momentum whilst sell-offs continued to be seen in both Malaysia and regional equities market due to potential narrowing interest differential with the US.

Overall MGS/GII yields traded higher as sentiment remained cautious as well as tracking the upwardly movement in regional bond curves pressured by elevated UST yields. 10-years MGS yields continued to edge higher by 3 bps to 4.20% from 4.17% previous month.

Foreign investors withdrew a total of RM12.9 billion in local bonds/sukuk and discounted instruments. This is the largest outflow in a single month since March 2017, likely due to positions trimming associated with the Election and further exaggerated by unfavorable external environment as the risk aversion to the emerging market arises.

On the primary segment, BNM had a new 20-years MGS auction early of the month. The bid-to-cover ratio was robust at 1.942 times with an average yield of 4.893%. The good demand was unexpected as the new government rolls out measures to address fiscal concerns and current yield levels are attractive to long-term investors despite the illiquidity in the secondary market.

Investment Outlook & Strategy

On 9th May 2018, Malaysia witnessed a historical moment as the 61 years old incumbent federal government lost in the 14th General Election and is now led by the previous Prime Minister Tun Mahathir. The government transition was smooth and without clashes. This placed a huge relief as we had expected much volatility post-election. However, the market is still wary as players continue to debate policy direction of the new government and concern lingers on the fiscal impact from the implementation of the key election proposals such as the abolishment of GST and re-introduction of fuel subsidies.

Having said, we envisage that the new Malaysia policies are likely to be bond-positive as macro conditions still conducive. The government continues to focus on debt reduction, which is important to pave the fiscal and debt pathway towards an improved level. We expect a flatter yield curve on the back of these scenarios.

On the other hand, BNM's monetary policy statement sounded sanguine on economic prospects. Malaysia's economy rose 5.4% y-o-y in 1Q2018 (+5.9%: 4Q2017) whilst the current account surplus widened to 4.4% of GDP in 1Q2018 (3.9%: 4Q2017). Exports are expected to see some drag with rising trade tensions among major countries. Also, imported inflation caused the weaker MYR may be counterbalanced by the abolishment of GST. This will also sanction BNM to keep rates steady at 3.25% and maintain accommodative rhetoric.

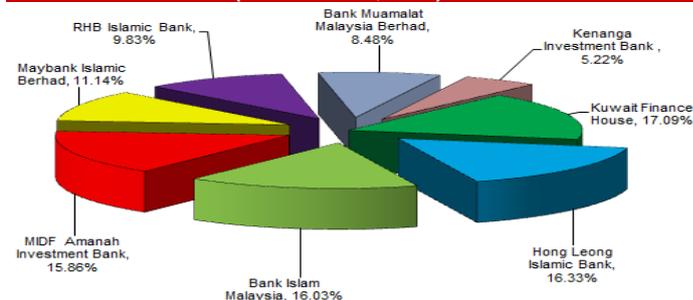

Meanwhile, trading momentum is expected to remain soft as markets await further leads and policy clarity from the new government but with a stable USD/MYR will keep demand for local government bonds/sukuk supported.

The Fund will continue investing in short term Islamic deposits.
