MANAGER'S COMMENTS

Review

In the month of June, the local government sukuk/bonds yields continued to fall in tandem with the global trend. The rally in global bond yields triggered a confluence of negative headlines 1) trade tension spreading to Mexico on the unexpected 10% import tariff by Trump, 2) potential easing in 2019 should downside risk to the US economy intensifies and 3) poor economic release in the US which further drove expectation of a rate cut in 2019.

As such, the market turned risk-on and this has spurred strong buying interest in the local sukuk/bond space. The overall GII and MGS yields fell by 9 bps to 26 bps and 11 bps to 23 bps respectively.

Besides, the headline inflation rate remained unchanged at 0.2% year-on-year (y-o-y) for the third consecutive months, falling slightly below the consensus of 0.3% y-o-y.

Meanwhile, foreign holdings of MYR sukuk/bonds return to positive for the month of June. After 2 consecutive months of net outflow in April and May, foreign inflows returned in June totaling MYR6.6 billion as global central banks shifted to a more dovish outlook on monetary policy stance amid looming concerns over global growth. Foreign holdings in MGS returned close to April's level rose to 36.9% from 35.8% in May and 37.1% in April respectively.

Investment Outlook & Strategy

Amid a challenging external environment and considerable downside risk to global growth, we expect sentiments to potentially moderate on growth prospects including the domestic front. Malaysia's growth forecast is in the range of 4.4% to 5.5% in the next two years, the budget deficit is likely to moderate to 3.0% of GDP by 2020. Meanwhile, inflation outlook is expected around 0.9% for 2019 and 2.0% in 2020.

Key headwinds to growth include the external sector as the global outlook weakens and potential commodity-related supply disruptions.

Another key factor to monitor is FTSE Russell's decision in September whether MGS will be excluded from the World Government Bond Index (WGBI). The outflow is expected to see an outflow risk circa 15 billion to 20 billion, if Malaysia loses its eligibility. On the other, it will be positive for the sukuk/bond market should it remains. Meanwhile, the moderating global conditions, unresolved trade tensions, and softer business sentiment could affect domestic activity. Having said, we expect domestic demand will continue to provide some relief in addition to higher private investment to continue supporting headline growth in 2019. Sukuk/bond yields to shift lower due to strong safe-haven bids mainly onshore real money investors. We expect corporate sukuk/bonds yields to compress further due to demand from yield-hunt and scarcity of supply. Besides, we view that the OPR cut and abundant domestic liquidity will support the local government sukuk/bond market.

The Fund will continue investing in short term Islamic deposits.
